

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Tahoe Seating integrates component that continues to push superior manufacturing quality.

Tahoe Seating, of Carrollton, Texas, announces the integration of a T-nut component that takes 500 lbs of pressure and offers ease of assembly for higher manufacturing standards.

"We listen, listen, listen, and then we execute," said Adam Cox, Principal of Tahoe Seating. "As a manufacturer of motion seating, you cannot compromise the quality of your components - especially when integrating vibro tactile and actuator devices into seating. Compounded by the natural elements of time, humidity and heat, some of these devices generate over 1,500 pounds of energy. Due to our competitive market advantages, our supplier for this innovative component is confidential, but I can say, that after years of diligent research and a commitment to quality, this T-nut component is a differentiator of distinction! Gone are the days when custom installers had to deal with T-nuts coming out in the field! This T-nut component sustains 500 lbs of force per nut and most importantly offers our dealers ease of field assembly."

"This product helps us live by our mantra, 'Quality is remembered long after price is forgotten'," says Rick Neverdousky, National Sales Director of Tahoe Seating. "This is, by far, Tahoe Seating's best innovation in the entire time I have been with the company. Superior Components, Super Quality... that's Tahoe Seating."
